

Toby Pannone

Toby is attending Boston University studying Film & TV, Deaf Studies and Urban Studies. Toby has been very involved in filmmaking and arts and theatre programs, including several years with Brooklyn Children's Theatre. He also has battled through several challenges including childhood cancer and hearing loss. But those challenges have not deterred him from academic and extracurricular success. He excels in Math and Science and made a film series called Toby Pannone's Science Zoom as part of his math and science course. Particularly impressive is Toby's involvement with Memorial Sloan Kettering. He has been fundraising and promoting the Kids Walk for MSK Kids since 2008 and has personally raised over $60,000 for cancer research. Toby hopes to pursue a career in Film and TV as a director, camera operator, editor, or screenwriter. He is a graduate of The Beacon School.
